Why attend The Singapore WSH Conference 2022?

Established as the premier platform for workplace safety and health stakeholders, The Singapore WSH Conference gathers business leaders, government officials, WSH practitioners and management representatives to discuss challenges and share best practices to explore and improve strategies for WSH and business sustainability.

In its seventh edition, this biennial Conference will highlight how WSH is good for business and a vital building block towards business sustainability in the years ahead – putting us one step closer to our WSH 2028 goals.

Here's why you should attend this year's Conference:

One of the biggest WSH events in Southeast Asia

With over 40 renowned speakers, the Conference is expected to bring in over 1,000 participants from different industries. This seventh edition of the Singapore WSH Conference is anticipated to be one of the biggest WSH events in the region. There are opportunities aplenty for networking and WSH collaborations for management decision makers and WSH practitioners which can transform the way work is done, leading to new business breakthroughs.

Industrial knowledge sharing

Compare and contrast emerging workplace trends and WSH practices with delegates from different industries. Exchange knowledge on how businesses can remain sustainable and continue to support employee health, safety and well-being, while adapting to changes brought about by the pandemic.

Diverse range of plenary sessions and symposiums

The Conference comprises four plenary sessions and six symposiums covering three broad WSH topics vital to business sustainability, namely ownership, health and technology. You can be assured that you will find topics that can help improve your business processes and bolster your competitive edge.
